

Says Reds Must Know Danger of Plane Flights

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union should be given to understand that flights over U. S. aircraft carriers are dangerous and "carry the seeds of possible conflict," Sen. Karl E. Mundt said today.

Alaskan members of Congress clamored for stronger defenses for the 49th state in the wake of last Thursday's penetration of Alaskan air space by two Soviet planes. One said a disaster could happen unless the area is made more of a bastion.

Officials sought today to plumb the reason for a series of episodes in which Soviet aircraft flew over U.S. aircraft carriers at sea.

There was speculation that these could be tit-for-tat tactics for the close inspection the United States gives to Soviet block and other ships proceeding to Communist Cuba.

Revealing the latest of these incidents, the Defense Department said Monday that four Soviet Bears—normally classed as bombers but employed last for reconnaissance—flew over the carrier Constellation in the western Pacific Saturday.

Seeking More Power for City Folks

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers fighting for more political power for city folks and suburbanites got a big lift today out of a "one person, one vote" decision by the U.S. Supreme Court.

To Charles S. Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association and attorney for city dwellers, the decision points in only one direction:

Eventually—and probably sooner than many people think—both houses of each state legislature in the 50 states will be apportioned according to population. This would indeed be a political revolution, turning many a politician's plans and future, topsy-turvy.

But the day is not yet, and a leader on the other side of the fight, Brevard Cribfield, executive secretary of the Council of State Governments, sees a long, controversy-strewn road ahead.

Cribfield holds with retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter that the high court was unwise to venture into the "political thicket" of voting apportionment. "I foresee," Cribfield told a newsman today, "almost limitless litigation and confusion ahead of us, to the detriment of orderly governmental processes."

"Actually Monday's 8-1 decision did not deal with apportionment of state legislatures—though many lawyers felt it inscribed certain handwriting on the wall."

What it did was to administer the coup de grace to Georgia's old county unit system for reckoning results of statewide Democratic primaries. The system, before it was revamped somewhat in a vain attempt to get by the courts, made a farmer's vote in the least populous county worth 99 times the vote of an Atlanta citizen.

This was done by providing that a governorship candidate, for example, who carried a county got all its unit votes. One result was that red-gallused Gene Talmadge, late governor, once remarked that he never bothered to campaign in a community big enough to have

by JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court is filling a vacuum in American government by protecting people's rights when Congress or state legislatures fail to do so or fail to undo what has become unfair.

It has been criticized for asserting such authority. But in recent years it has not been deterred. The principle is not new. It's now 160 years since the court first claimed such authority.

Three prime examples:

1. In 1954 it outlawed segregation in public schools.
2. One year ago it moved to give city people their fair proportion of representation in state legislatures.
3. Monday, in the logical next step after the 1962 decision, it said each person's vote must count as much as any other's in statewide elections.

In 1803 Chief Justice John Marshall—by simply saying the Supreme Court had the authority—asserted its right to pass on the constitutionality of acts of Congress and state legislatures.

Until then such authority of the court was questionable. It had never been spelled out. Marshall was criticized but the principle stuck.

Succeeding generations of Supreme Court justices had not always been willing to throw their weight around. Some seemed more influenced by the climate of their time than by strict constitutional considerations.

For example: In 1896 the court gave its famous "separate but equal" rule. This said it was not unconstitutional for state laws to segregate Negroes in public places provided the treatment they got equalled that given whites.

It became increasingly unequal until Negroes wound up treated as second-class citizens. But Congress, despite growing protests, for more than half a century refused to do do that 1896 ruling by declaring segregation unlawful.

The Supreme Court stepped into this national vacuum in 1954 with the public school decision which in effect said the 1896 decision was wrong. The 1954 decision then had the effect of law.

Once this step was taken, the door was open to other court action against segregation in other areas.

In the last century people living in the country far outnumbered city-dwellers. They therefore justly moored representation in state legislatures in proportion to numbers.

As the population shifted and more people lived in cities than in the country, state legislatures should have changed in complexion with city people having the greater number of representatives.

Man 80, Held for Slaying Youth

MARION, Ark. (AP)—Anthony Brooks, 80, was bound over to Circuit Court here Monday on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Henry Lee Burton, 16.

Both Brooks and Burton were Negroes.

Woman Kills Son Accidentally

LAKE VILLAGE, Ark. (AP)—Sheriff John Biggs of Chicot County said Monday that Mrs. Eva Standridge mistook her son, Dennis Lee, 4, for an intruder and shot him to death at their home here.

The Standridge home was broken into recently, Biggs said. The boy apparently went outside in the night and woke his mother up when he came back in about 2 a.m., he said. The sheriff said the mother told him she fired one time with a 22-caliber rifle and shot the boy in the forehead.

Morocco Says French Set Off A-Test

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—King Hassan II has accused France of holding a new nuclear test in the Sahara. He ordered his Foreign Ministry to protest to the French government.

The Moroccan government said it learned an atomic device was exploded Monday in the Hagggar region of the Sahara, near the Reggan testing site.

There have been no reports of a nuclear blast from any detection post on either side of the Iron Curtain.

Algeria threatened earlier Monday to break its economic cooperation agreements with France if President Charles de Gaulle ordered another test in the Sahara, which is part of newly independent Algeria. Rumors have been current for days that such an explosion was imminent, but the Moroccan report was the first claim that one had taken place.

The French government maintained its usual refusal either to confirm or deny the report.

Each of the preceding four French atomic blasts in the Sahara touched off a series of protests from African nations.

The Moroccan communiqué gave no source for its claim that France had exploded a nuclear device. Speculation has been that the next French test would be of an underground device—the hardest to detect.

France retained control of the Sahara testing bases for five years under the Evian agreements which gave Algeria independence last year. Atomic testing was not mentioned, but the Algerians knew that was what the bases were used for.

Feels 1960s to Soar in Two Years

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—When, if ever, are the '60s going to soar? Maybe they'll take off about 1965, if we have good luck and lower taxes. Once aloft, the economy could be swept into the 1970s on the updraft of an unprecedented wave of family formation.

So says Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, who recently observed that up to now this decade could be called the "slightly soggy '60s."

Ever since the baby binge that followed World War II, experts have been predicting a business boom in the 1960s. The baby crop would mature, marry, and set off widening waves of demand by building houses, choosing furniture, buying cars and television sets, and starting its own crop of babies.

Now the seers are less certain. Too many newcomers to the labor market are finding the "no vacancy" sign up. The real tidal wave of young jobhunters hasn't yet arrived.

If the oncoming millions don't find employment, the soaring '60s could turn out to be the slumping '60s, with ever-quickening automation diminishing the job opportunities for a swiftly growing labor force.

Dr. Heller is optimistic. The big push of family formation, he told an interviewer, apparently will develop three or four years from now, and it should be an economic blessing rather than a burden.

Originally most demographers—those who study population trends and their effects—judged that the economic impact of family formation would be felt by 1964 or 1965. Today there is less agreement on the timing, but the experts still believe that the stork brings prosperity.

Some predict the lift will be delayed until the threshold of the '70s.

Chairman Heller favors a guess of 1966 or 1967—by which time, he believes, the economy should already be on the rise.

But he disagrees emphatically with the idea that the country can relax, secure in the knowledge that a demographic time-bomb is ticking away, hiding its hour to blast away the effects of years of underemployment.

An era of unprecedented economic expansion is possible, according to Heller, but it will not be bestowed on Americans solely by "the county of providence and procreation."

McNamara Will Get Chance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Monday that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara would be allowed to testify Thursday about the awarding of the huge TFX warplane contract.

That was McClellan's only comment after conferring with Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric.

McClellan, chairman of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, is investigating the awarding of the contract to General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex. The contract is expected to eventually be worth $6.5 billion.

McNamara filed a sworn statement last week challenging testimony the subcommittee had received, saying the Defense Department overrode military opinion that a rival design by Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., promised a better plane at lower cost.

Exiles Attack Soviet Vessel in Cuban Port

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban exile commandos shelled a Soviet military camp and a Soviet ship in a hit-and-run raid on a northern Cuban port city, anti-Castro groups report. Some Russians were killed, they said, and the raiders escaped.

Havana radio reported Monday night that some wounded sailors had been taken to a hospital, but the broadcast did not mention any raid.

The State Department said it had no information on the raid, and it and the Pentagon made no comment.

Spokesmen for two Cuban exile groups, Alpha 66 and the Second National Front of Escambray, said members of their organizations staged the attacks Sunday night. Alpha 66 and the Second Front joined forces last fall and have carried out raids on Cuba before.

The attack was described this way:

The raiders divided into two camps just offshore from Sagua la Grande in Las Villas Province. One group went ashore to a small town called Isabela la Sagua and shelled the Soviet military camp. The others stayed in the boat and looted 20mm cannon shells into the ship.

One of the artillery shells hit the stack carrying the hammer and sickle, the report said.

In New York, Antonio Vaciara, head of Alpha 66, said the raiders already have returned to a secret base in the Caribbean and that he expected a full report via short wave radio to Alpha 66 in Miami. Details of the raid will be disclosed at a news conference in Washington, he said.

The initial report of the raid—the first onemade in several months—came in a Miami radio broadcast by "The Voice of the People." This is the refugee program that first reported the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba.

Alpha 66, an action group which does not deal in the fractured politics of most exile groups in Miami, claimed credit for shooting the British ship Newtane and two Cuban vessels in a raid Sept. 10.

Safety Week Observed at Hope High

In accordance with Safety Week Sgt. I. Files, State Police Headquarters, Little Rock, talked to Hope High student Monday and presented a film, "Signal 30" which dealt with accidents in Ohio.

The film exposed to students the consequences of reckless driving.

During this week student council monitors will observe student traffic around the school. Trophies will be presented to the safest boy and girl driver and a $5 award will be given to the winner of the safety slogan contest.

In order to create more interest in Safety Week, the committee, headed by David Porterfield, has placed a burned truck with a dummy driver on the campus. This serves as a reminder to students.

Post Asked to Retract Accusation

ATLANTA (AP)—The Saturday Evening Post has been asked to retract an article accusing Wallace Butts and Alabama Coach Paul Bryant of collusion to rig the Alabama-Georgia football game last fall.

The move is necessary under Georgia law, to enable a plaintiff to recover punitive damages if a libel suit is filed and won in court.

Both Butts, former athletic director at the University of Georgia, and Bryant have denied the charges. Butts has said he intends to file a libel suit.

Bryant has a $50,000 libel suit pending against the Post in connection with another article about football brutality.

The request for a retraction was made Monday in a telegram to Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, from Butts' attorney, William Schroeder.

Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook began an investigation Monday and said he may interview Alabama football players. He had not decided whether Georgia players would be interviewed.

Cook said Butts and Bryant both will be questioned, as will Georgia Coach Johnny Griffith, Dr. O. C. Adelghold, president of the University of Georgia, and the writer of the Post article, Frank Graham Jr., a free-lance writer. The state investigation was ordered by Gov. Carl E. Sanders after the Post charged that Butts gave Bryant detailed information about Georgia's team eight days before the game, which Alabama won 35-0.

George Burnett, an Atlanta insurance salesman, was quoted in the magazine story as saying that he overheard a telephone conversation between Butts and Bryant. Burnett said in a statement Monday that "an impulsive desire that the truth be known" led him to provide the Post with the story.

NLB Ruling Goes Against Firm

WASHINGTON (AP)—A trial examiner's ruling that Ace Comb Co. of Booneville, Ark., stop discouraging membership in the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America was affirmed Monday.

The NLRB also ruled Monday that a plant employee was discharged for union activity and should be reinstated and reimbursed for pay lost.

JFK, Latins Discuss Policy Guidelines

By FRANK CORMIER

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, (AP)—President Kennedy set out today to translate a personal triumph into meaningful policy guidelines acceptable to the United States and the leaders of six Latin American nations.

Kennedy, who received a wildly enthusiastic welcome Monday from nearly 200,000 Costa Ricans, scheduled morning and afternoon meetings with the presidents of Panama and the five Central American republics.

Their aim was to draft by nightfall a "declaration of San Jose" which Kennedy said he hoped would help "improve the life of our peoples" and "increase our capacity to prevent the infiltration of Cuban agents, money and propaganda" into the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

The U. S. president told his colleagues at the opening conference session: "We will build a wall around Cuba—not a wall of mortar or brick to barbed wire but a wall of dedicated men determined to protect their own freedom and sovereignty."

The Soviet news agency Tass, commenting on these words, said they "conceal a desire to form a common front of the reactionary forces of the states which are dependent on the United States for fresh aggression against Cuba."

Rehearing in Church Case to Be Asked

By BILL SIMMONS

TRASKWOOD, Ark. (AP)—Elder A. Z. Dovers of the Traskwood Landmark Missionary Baptist Church said here Monday night that his attorneys are preparing a motion of reconsideration of the Arkansas Supreme Court's ruling that he cannot act as pastor of the church.

The Supreme Court ruled March 4 that Dovers must stop acting as pastor of the church. It gave him 17 days to stop. Dovers' last sermon at the church is scheduled for Wednesday night.

He had said he would not appeal the decision because an appeal to secular courts would be an admission that the word of God was not sufficient law for Christians.

"I want the court to reconsider its decision because I feel they acted hastily," Dovers said Monday night. "This thing was rushed through."

He said he did not know how long it would be before the motion for reconsideration would be prepared, or when it would be filed.

A motion for reconsideration is not the same as an appeal. An appeal is to a higher court. A motion for reconsideration is merely a request for a court to review its own decision.

The 6-1 decision by the state Supreme Court reversed a Saline County Court decision.

In its decision, the Supreme Court restrained Dovers from using property of the church to preach "doctrines contrary to the beliefs of the Missionary Baptist faith."

It came after a minority of the Traskwood congregation filed suit, claiming that he preached contrary doctrines.

The decision has been attacked repeatedly by Baptists.

Dr. Erwin L. McDonald, editor of the Arkansas Baptist Magazine, challenged the decision, saying it was "based on strange reasoning to justify its action."

"The implication of the Arkansas court is that separation of church and state breaks down and becomes inoperable in those churches that are self-governing," he said.

A majority of the Traskwood congregation had voted to retain Dovers as their pastor.

Rev. M. L. Moser Jr., editor of the Baptist Challenge, said in an

The system was knocked out by a lower federal court, and last year's Georgia primary was on a popular basis. An appeal was filed, however and Monday the unit system went out the window irrevocably. Writing for the majority, Justice William O. Douglas said the concept of political equality, from the Declaration of Independence down, "can mean only one thing—one person, one vote."

To the dissenter, Justice John M. Harlan, this "flies in the face of history." He said the idea of "one person, one vote" has never been universally accepted in England or this country.

Harlan said he could not deem it irrational for Georgia to "apply its county unit system to the selection of candidates for . . . statewide offices in order to assure against a predominantly 'city point of view' in the administration of state affairs."

Ferment over apportionment has spread rapidly across the nation as a result of the Supreme Court's "Baker vs. Carr" decision in March 1962. The court ruled then for the first time that federal courts have jurisdiction when citizens contend they are victims of "individual discrimination" in apportionment of state legislatures.

Nobody can keep track of the total number of lawsuits filed since then, but they number at least 78 in 38 states. Fifteen state legislatures have taken some reapportionment action, although not in many cases to the satisfaction of city dwellers. In 17 states reapportionment is in one stage or another of consideration.

Eleven cases are headed for possible decision by the Supreme Court, with more to follow. One prime question remains unanswered. Is it all right to base one house of a legislature on geography, as in Congress, where each state has two senators?

Cases from Maryland and Michigan could be the vehicles for deciding this momentous issue. Maryland's highest court ruled it is legal for the state Senate to be based on geography; Michigan's Supreme Court ruled the opposite.

Behind the cities' drive for proportionate power in legislature is the feeling they are short-changed now on mass transport, education and other metropolitan needs.

Behind the rural blocs' fight is a fear that city waters might ride roughshod over them, neglecting the problems peculiar to the countryside.

editorial in the magazine that the decision limits the sovereignty of churches and discriminates against Baptists.

He said the ruling nullified the doctrine of separation of church and state and made the state arbiter of church disputes, "except in churches that have denominational hierarchies."

M. L. Moser Sr., also of Little Rock and father of the editor of the Baptist Challenge, told his congregation Sunday that "if this action stands it will open the door to religious persecution here in liberty loving America."

All three men said the state Supreme Court had, in effect, fired Dovers, an Elder, as pastor of the Traskwood church.

Dovers said Monday night that the decision establishes a precedent, and he asked the question: "If they can make this kind of a decision now, heaven knows what kind of decisions they will make later on."

"I thank the Lord we have the government we have," he said. "I hate to see it broken down, but I know it has got to be broken down before the coming of the Lord. It's just one more step nearing His coming."

Dovers said the congregation of the church called him July 7, 1958, and he had acted as its pastor since.

Animals of All Sizes Are Saluted

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey, in his second television special of the season, saluted animals of all shapes, sizes and points of origin Monday night.

The CBS program opened with Godfrey crooning a love song to a basset hound, which properly looked embarrassed and unhappy about such human nonsense. It concluded with a production number which was a paean to "the $2 window" and horse-racing.

In between, we saw a series of still photographs showing Godfrey with some animals in the private zoo on his Virginia farm and a very long performance of trained sealions and porpoises at a Pacific Coast amusement park.

Not all the animals were alive. Talented Shari Lewis worked amusingly with her little puppet, Lamb Chop. Mel Blanc provided a sampling of his animal voices, including, of course, Bugs Bunny.

The program floated all over the place and lacked the sharpness of focus and spirited pace which distinguished Godfrey's other special earlier this season. Also, it had a tendency to be cute and so, alas, did Godfrey.

CBS has been bragging that it has its fall schedule locked in at an unprecedented early date—but the network obviously hasn't thrown away the key. At the moment, it looks as though the schedule is being unlocked—to remove "The Real McCoys" after all these seasons. It all depends on whether CBS can make a deal to get "Car 54" for a ride on a new channel next season.

The substitution of the comedy-cops series would make for more diversified programming, anyway. As things now stand, "The Real McCoys" would be followed on Wednesday nights by "Beverly Hillsbillies," which makes for a pretty stiff dose of country-style humor.

Here's one reason why the Bible is known as the "Good Book": A new concordance of key biblical words published by the American Bible Society devotes 302 lines to such words as "love" and "kindness," but only 62 lines to "hate."

Bootleg liquor during America's prohibition era was hard on the health as well as the pocketbook. Deaths from acute alcoholism in New York City rose from 84 in 1920 to 719 in 1927.

The favorite drink of King Frederick the Great of Prussia was coffee brewed with champagne instead of water. He doubled the size of his country, wrote 31 books — and lived to be 74.

By BILL RALEY

Back in 1939, a brand new fabric was introduced to the market. It was hailed as a sensation by chemical companies, and the name of it... nylon. Durable, washable, no-ironing, no-itching, inexpensive, you name it, and this fabric had it.

In spite of everything, there were many drawbacks. On a hot day, a man's nylon shirt would allow the wearer to stew in his own juice. The fact that they did not have to be ironed did not keep them from looking like they had never been ironed in the first place. Nylon did not drape to the shape but had a paper-effect look which discouraged designers.

Twenty-four years and several millions later, some of the answers have been found... maybe not all of them, but enough to lift the sales to the sensation point. The stretch yarns, formerly used in sportswear, may next be used in men's business suits. It will discourage dieting, which most men do not like anyway, because of the expansion possibilities. On the other hand, it might enable them to wear the same suit from the wedding to the funeral...

This may be well and good for men, but women like variety in fabrics, and if you want to see the very newest, we invite you to Raley's Style Shoppe Spring Preview. The city shirt-waist dress, softly tailored in carefree Dacron "Whipped Cream" comes in prints of beige, yellow and apricot, only $17.95. The princess skimmer, lightly fitted silhouette is superb in Arnel sharkskin, so easy to wear and so smart under your coat... $22.95. The accessory dress, slender cut in blended rayon and flax comes in pale straw color; you will love it accessorized with Jone's Jewelry, and the price is only $17.95.

There are many others; why not see them all... the place is Raley's Style Shoppe, Hope's House of Fashion.

Cargile Post will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 21 at the home of Mrs. James Laughard. A special recording by the national president will be heard.

Sabin Program

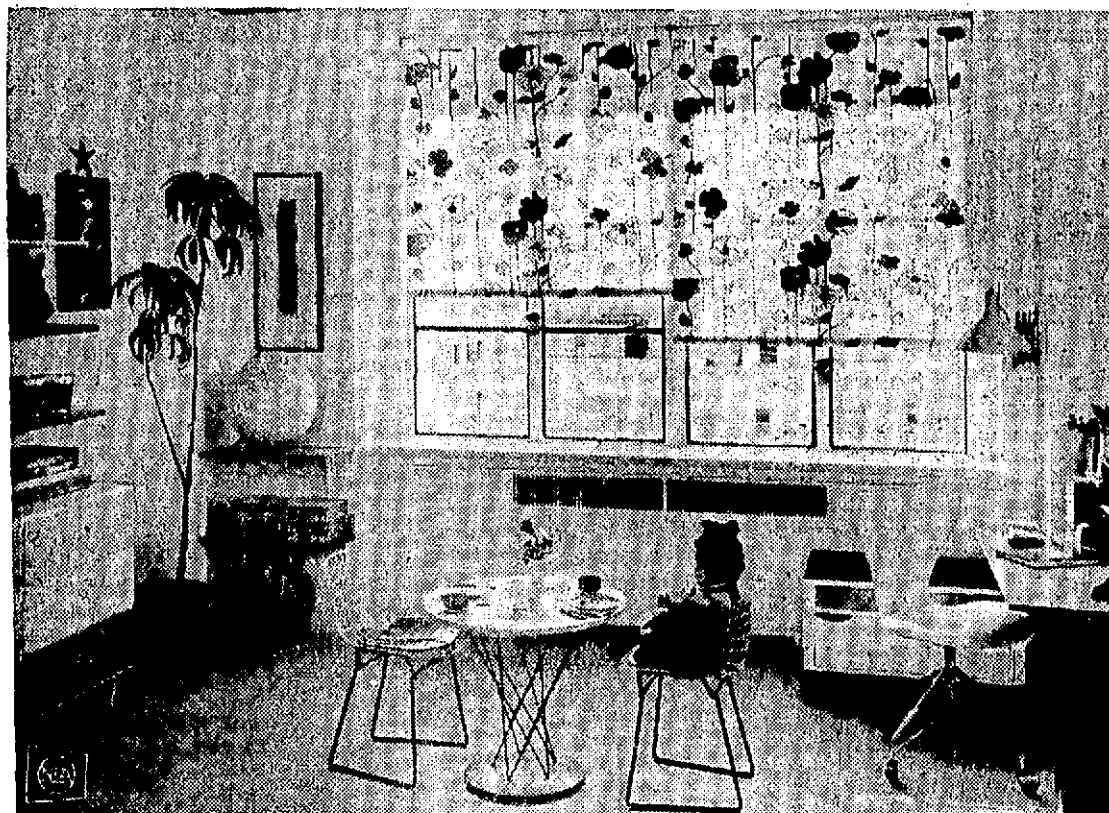

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Sabin oral polio vaccine was administered to 10,417 persons in Faulkner County Sunday—about 43 per cent of the county's population.

The last-minute scramble to pack grooming accessories is over for this relaxed traveler (left). Between trips, she assembles a travel kit (center) with cosmetics and wardrobe aids such as a sewing kit and clothes brush and keeps the kit up-to-date, ready to go. Included are a plastic clothesline and detergent for that overnight laundry (right) she knows is part of any woman's travel schedule. The stretchable clothesline needs no clothespins.

A good antidote for gray days: a bright and cheerful room. Sunny colors—yellow, orange, and white are used. Fabric print is plasticized to make it suitable for window shades.

DOROTHY DIX

REMOURSEFUL HUSBAND ASKS HELP

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: This is a desperate plea from a desperate alcoholic.

When not drinking my home life couldn't be better. I have a wonderful wife, two grown boys whom I practically drove away, and a sweet teen daughter now starting in Junior High. Already her life is being blighted by my boozing.

How my wife has put up with me for 25 years I don't know. One moment I tell myself I want to quit, the next I just don't care. But I must want to or I wouldn't be writing to you. I have a fine job which, somehow, despite my debauching, is still mine.

I'll be on the wagon a couple of months, full of good resolutions, go full steam ahead, get business for the company, have fun with my family, make everybody including myself, happy. Then, bang! I'm on the skids again; squandering money at bars—setting up drinks for everybody including double shots for myself.

During these sprees which sometimes last weeks, I become completely irresponsible—forget home, family, personal obligations, job, everything. My drinking pals are the bums of the town. We lurch from bar to bar as long as my money lasts; then panhandle, caps in hand. As soon as we get the price of a bottle of cheap booze, we're off again.

My wife realizes the futility of trying to reform me. At first she worried herself sick, then when she could stand it no longer, went from one bar to another until she finally located me. Now she waits for this curse of mine to run its course, then finds me no matter where I am, takes me home, cleans me up, puts me to bed, calls the doctor and, between them, get me on my feet once again. Full of remorse, I make all sorts of promises, none of which I keep.

I've tried everything under the sun to shake this cursed habit; talked to our minister; attended Alcoholic Anonymous meetings

Dear Helen: I am a widow still in my thirties with two teen-age children. Friends say I'm still attractive and don't look my age. For nine years I've been meeting and dating the wrong men. They're the type who are either separated from their wives or about to divorce but never do. Everyone of them has been a phony, gigolo or all-around-no-gooder.

Why do I date them? Out of sheer desperation because I'm so lonely.

One of these dillys told me he loved me. I believed him. We had an affair. I felt ashamed and guilty. Perhaps fortunately for me, he had a wife in some distant state. They've lived apart for ten years.

I'm trying to put him out of my life. It isn't easy. I want so much to do what is right for my children's sake. Help me untangle my messy life. —Unhappy and Depressed

Dear Unhappy: Cross the no-goods off your list. Sit quietly for a certain period each day, reflecting upon what you really want out of life. Listen to that still small voice within you. Remember that by being your superior self you will attract the right person for you.

Go where worthwhile people go. Make quality your yardstick in clothes, personal appearance and ideals. Reach for the stars! When the half gods go, the full gods come.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Denounces JFK's Visit to Costa Rica

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Special Correspondent

The Communist world has pulled out all the stops to denounce President Kennedy's meeting, opening Monday, with Central-American presidents. An attempt to provoke violence during the meeting cannot be ruled out.

The meeting will be in San Jose, Costa Rica, and will be concerned to a large extent with the menace of Fidel Castro's communism in the Central-American area.

Costa Rica's Communist party appears to have arranged an alibi in advance should those intent on harassing the meeting succeed in breaking through the heavy security arrangements.

Manuel Mora Valverde, a leader of the Costa Rican party, announced publicly that the Communist party would not accept the blame for any "physical measures against the presidents" during the meeting.

From Moscow, in Spanish-language broadcasts to Central America, have come denunciations of the meeting as "a new plot against Cuba and the peoples of Central America." Moscow calls the meeting an attempt to form a Central-American military bloc to attack Cuba and hold back revolution elsewhere in Latin America. In what could be called to Communist-Castroist action, broadcasts repeat that "the people will thwart this new criminal plan."

Daniel Oduber, Costa Rican foreign minister, has not ruled out the possibility of a try from Cuba at violence during the meeting. He announced that whatever security measures are taken will be "directed against small hostile groups sent here to obstruct the presidents' conference."

Central American authorities consider Havana-directed subversion to be a major obstacle in the way of progress in the area. Presidents of the United States, Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Panama will discuss ways of countering the Cuban activity. Some Central Americans are reported demanding all action short of war.

The presidents also are going to talk about economic problems and how to improve standards of living. This will include a discussion of the Central-American common market, to which the U.S. President probably will pledge significant help.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A resolution opposing the location of any paper mill near Little Rock was passed unanimously by the Little Rock City Manager Board Monday night.

The resolution came after North Little Rock officials said they had been discussing the location of a paper mill in the Maumelle Rock.

They said a Wisconsin firm was involved.

The city of Little Rock and the Council of Garden Clubs in Little Rock objected to the odor created by paper mill processes.

Woodbury Makes Show Parttime Job

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a nice question as to whether Woody Woodbury is moonlighting as host on ABC's daytime "Who Do You Trust?" or is, in his words, "bar-room piano player."

Woodbury, a former Marine jet fighter pilot, took over Johnny Carson's old game show job this season—and handles it as a part-time, Monday-through-Wednesday, job. The rest of the time, he's back home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where, every night, he entertains the patrons of "My Saloon," the Chart Room of the Bahamas hotel.

Woodbury accidentally strayed into a show business career in 1947 when, guest of honor at a "getting out" party after Marine service in World War II, he sat down at the piano and accompanied some singers. The owner of the nightclub in which the party was being tossed was so impressed he offered a job. Since then, Woodbury has worked as an entertainer steadily, except for two years out for the Korean War.

Woody's entertainment chores at the nightclub are not painful—he owns it. When ABC was looking for a friendly, bright and easy-mannered fellow to take over Johnny Carson's hosting chores on its daytime audience participation show Woodbury was the fellow, got the job.

He usually takes a 10 p.m. plane from Florida on Sunday nights, arriving in New York around midnight and goes to his room in a midtown hotel. It takes him about 90 minutes to look over notes on the people he will interview on each show and work up some sort of a plan. He usually tapes two shows on Mondays and Tuesdays, and one on Wednesday.

Then he gets out to the airport as fast as possible where he has reservations on two planes—a later one in case he's delayed. Back at Fort Lauderdale, he goes right to his club.

"It sounds a bit tougher than it really is," Woodbury says. "I really have a pretty good life—I play golf every Thursday and week-ends. I have fun in my club—it's my workshop and a laboratory, the place where an entertainer gets his best training and develops his material."

Fallout Sparce for 320,737

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Civil Defense agency said Monday that there is fallout shelter space in Arkansas for 320,737 persons.

The agency said that many persons can be accommodated in 393 buildings that have been licensed and marked as public fallout shelters.

While stockpiling is continuing, the CD said good, water and sanitation facilities for two weeks had already been stored in some of the buildings. It said there was enough of the stockpiles for 47,065 persons.

S. K. Prosser of Conway, state CD director said about 30 percent of the shelters had been stocked with supplies.

He said the program in Conway, Morrilton, Russellville and other Arkansas River Valley cities was weak because there is little space in those areas that can pass U.S. Engineers surveys and qualify as shelters.

Prosser also said similar problems exist in the delta areas of the state.

DR. ANDERS' DILEMMA By HENRY AND SYLVIA LIEFERANT Chapter XXVI

He did not count on her taking the lead, as she did as soon as they were comfortably settled in her parents' dining room. The walk to her home had not contributed to his ease, nor the half-hour spent over glasses in the beer bar where he had taken her once before.

"I've put off going to Southampton for a long time, just to see you, David."

"You shouldn't have done that, Rhoda. Do you always go away so early?"

"Much earlier," she said, not smiling. "Would you come to Southampton to visit us, if I asked you?"

Her steady, disconcerting gaze filled him with restlessness. "I'm afraid I couldn't."

"That's why I stayed in town. David..."

He turned back from the window.

"Don't you like me at all? I thought, last time, maybe you did."

He looked around the room helplessly. She thought she understood, and she came up beside him and let her hand rest against his. She turned her face up as she had done that night, signifying in a pointed way her willingness to surrender. He looked away.

"It's money, David. You're afraid of money. Dad wasn't. He had nothing when he married Mother. He said her money helped him to be more useful, to skip over a great deal of grinding routine work which takes a man's energy when he's young. And Mother's kind of life never interfered with him. Is it because I have money, David, that you're afraid to ask me to marry you?"

With that uncanny intuition where men were concerned, Rhoda had trusted to David's chivalry for the response she desired. She had sensed, perhaps when she was as young as 16, that men who had kept aloof from women and therefore had not been hurt by them had that rare and almost extinct quality of chivalry. Men like Thorne and dozens of others she could have named commanded a pleasant surface politeness, which made it possible for a girl to expect certain properties, up to a point where self was not vitally concerned. Then they became ruthless.

Rhoda had expected David to ask her to marry him the last time she had seen him.

Accustomed to take from the world what she wanted, merely by asking for it, she saw no reason why her method was not applicable in marriage. David was the most important thing she had ever wanted. When they were married no one would ever know how the match had come about. David wouldn't tell. He would probably forget.

"David," she repeated, "is that why you're afraid to ask me to marry you?"

"I've never been very much afraid of anything," he said apologetically.

"This wasn't easy for me to say, David, but there's no use being stupidly proud, wearing one's days away in a silly reserve."

"Let's skip it, Rhoda. You haven't asked any question. I haven't answered. Nobody's heard anything—"

She had touched his chivalry, then, but his response was wrong. "We can't strike it off the record now, David."

"I'm sorry, Rhoda. I can't ask you to marry me. I don't think you'd really want to."

"You mean that, David?"

"Yes."

"Of course I never believed all those stories about you being woman-proof. Oh, I've heard Tony and Dad talk about the hospital, long before I met you. You must be in love with somebody else."

She moved away, slowly; fitted herself into a round blue chair, and rather thoughtfully arranged the folds of her black dress. "Are you?"

"Let's not discuss it," he said. "Would you have fallen in love with me, except for that?"

David had remained at the window. He wanted out. He felt that he would say something he would regret, if Rhoda persisted in her relentless questioning.

"How can I say what might have happened if something hadn't happened before?"

"So you're married already?"

The jagged skyline of the city, which he had been watching intently, wavered and receded. Now he knew that this was what he North Little Rock has not had one since O. W. Neely died in office in 1958.

Detroit to Be Site of Olympics

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The city of Detroit has won the opening skirmish but may lose the battle in its bid to hold the 1968 Olympic Games.

Reaffirmed by the U.S. Olympic Committee as the American city most qualified to make the pitch, the world's motor capital was not overly optimistic over its chances of selling itself to the International Olympic Committee.

The Detroit delegation, headed by Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, was elated when the city was chosen over four others Monday by the USOC board of directors, but the spearhead of the drive added a sobering note.

"We will be definite underdogs before the IOC next October," said Fred C. Matthaei, Sr., chairman of the Detroit Olympic Committee. "It's no secret that the IOC is heavily European flavored. Also, our cause has been hurt by our internal battles — first, the AAU-NCAA power war and then this fight between Los Angeles and Detroit for the site."

The IOC is expected to pick the 1968 Olympic site at its meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, next October. Besides Detroit, cities bidding include Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Vienna, Lausanne and Lyons, France.

One of the European spots is favored to get the nod. However, Detroit intends to put up a fight—the same kind that won it selection over Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., in the tussle before the 40-man board of directors of the USOC.

Detroit, picked last October by the same board but later challenged by Los Angeles, was reaffirmed by an overwhelming vote after each of the five cities spent an hour making presentations at the Olympic House.

With 40 board members voting, 32 chose Detroit, 4 voted for Los Angeles, 2 for Portland and 1 each for San Francisco and Philadelphia. A plurality of 21 votes was all that was needed.

Detroit announced plans for a new, 3-tier stadium, seating 110,000, to be built on the State Fair Grounds, and for an Olympic Village, accommodating 9,000, at Wayne State College.

Fort Myers, Fla. Julio Gotay hit the game's only home run for the Buccaneers.

Two sparkling 1-0 pitching duels offset the home run outburst. The Pleis gave the Philadelphia Phils New York Yankees 1-0 at St. Petersburg, Fla., as Roger Craig and Al Jackson combined for a five-inning, Larry Burritt singled home the winning run in the seventh inning. The Yanks Ralph Terry held the Mets scoreless in hurling the first six innings.

Washington catcher Ken Reitzel's error on a throw to the plate accounted for the lone Red Sox run off Dean Chance, who worked six innings for the Angels.

The Kansas City A's and the Pittsburgh Pirates played a 4-4 tie that was called at the end of 12 innings because of darkness at

Nation to Get to See Finals of NCAA Meet

By DON WEISS

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The finale of the National Collegiate Basketball championship tournament Saturday night will be telecast nationally for the first time since 1954, the NCAA disclosed today.

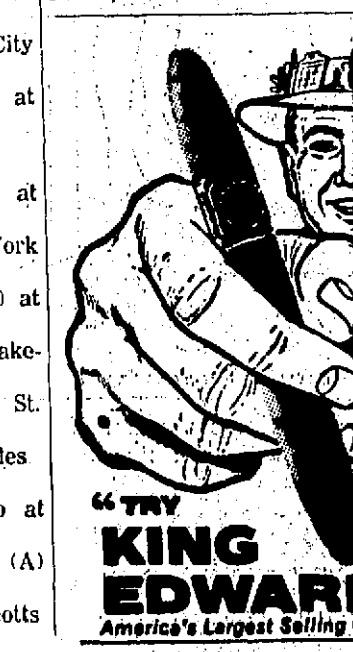

A spokesman said Sports Network Inc., an independent company which bought package telecast rights for the 1963 tournament, expects up to 140 television outlets to carry the game, which begins at 935 p.m., EST.

"More than 100 stations already have signed up and we're told the figure could reach 140," the spokesman said. "Sports network estimates that the telecast will be available to at least 90 per cent of the nation's viewing audience."

The nation's 1-2-3 teams—Cincinnati, Duke, and Chicago Loyola—along with Oregon State have advanced to the finals, which begin at massive Freedom Hall here Friday night. The semifinals, matching Duke against Chicago Loyola and Cincinnati, the two-time defending champion, against Oregon State, will be telecast by Sports Network on a regional basis.

The major television networks have been interested in televising the NCAA final nationally for several years but balked because the NCAA's insistence on playing the game at night meant the network would have to pre-empt time usually occupied by several of its high-budget Saturday night shows. Telecasts each year have been on a regional basis.

Under the package plan this year, Sports Network handled the NCAA regional telecasts at College Park, Md., East Lansing, Mich., Lawrence, Kan., and Provo, Utah.
